

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation. It is a terrifying precedent that money can undermine our democracy. There is no difference between a government run media and a media that is run by huge conglomerates who benefit from a specific government or government policies. Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest, not it's pockets.

Thank you.
